

Senate Committee on the Judiciary
Subcommittee on Oversight, Agency Action, Federal Rights and Federal Courts “Justice Forsaken: How the Federal Government Fails the American Victims of Iranian and Palestinian Terrorism”

Responses of Kent A. Yalowitz to Questions from Senator Amy Klobuchar

Q: Do you have suggestions as to how federal law can be changed to facilitate the filing and securing of judgements by victims of terrorism?

A: Not at this time.

Q: Are there procedural or statutory impediments currently in place, either in statute or judicial interpretation, that make filing cases or securing judgements more difficult?

A: Not at this time.