I have not held a position or played a formal role in a political campaign or with any political party.

On November 4, 2008, I served as a poll watcher in New Hampshire on behalf of the Republican Party.

In January of 2017, I performed pro bono legal work for the Trump/Pence Transition.

14. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

From 2009 to 2010, I served as a law clerk to the Honorable Brett M. Kavanaugh, then-Judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

From 2012 to 2013, I served as a law clerk to the Honorable Samuel A. Alito, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have never practiced law alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have not served as a mediator or arbitrator.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

After graduating from law school, I served as a law clerk to Judge Brett M. Kavanaugh of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

Following my clerkship, I joined the Appellate Section of the U.S. Department of Justice's Criminal Division. During my time at Criminal Appellate, I briefed and argued four appeals in federal courts of appeals, authored four Supreme Court briefs in opposition to certiorari, and authored numerous memoranda advising the Solicitor General whether to authorize an appeal after the United States received an adverse judgment.

During my tenure at the Justice Department, I was also detailed to the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia, where I served as a Special Assistant United States Attorney. During my detail, I tried a handful of misdemeanor bench trials and one felony jury trial. I was also sole counsel in prosecuting – from indictment and initial appearance through sentencing – several oxycodone pill-mill rings and the illegal reentry of several violent felons; indicted a large-scale drug conspiracy; argued a number of pre-trial motions and motions to suppress; handled dozens of detention hearings and several supervised-release violation hearings; and assisted in motions practice for a securities fraud prosecution.

In 2012, I left the Justice Department to serve as a law clerk to Justice Samuel A. Alito on the Supreme Court of the United States.

Following my clerkship on the Supreme Court, I began working as an associate at Kirkland & Ellis LLP, where my practice focused on appellate litigation, white-collar defense, and commercial litigation. I successfully briefed and/or argued a number of dispositive motions and appeals, was part of a number of internal investigation or corporate monitor teams, undertook two individual criminal representations, briefed (and second-chaired the argument in) a Supreme Court case, and was part of a trial team in a commercial dispute. I was promoted to partner in 2015.

In 2017, I left Kirkland to join the White House Counsel's Office as Associate Counsel to the President (and, later, Special Assistant and Associate Counsel to the President). In the White House, I worked primarily on judicial selection, U.S. Attorney hiring, rulemaking, and client-side management of litigation matters involving White House equities.

In 2019, I rejoined the Justice Department as Counselor to the Attorney General. In that capacity, I primarily advised the Attorney General regarding civil litigation, the First Amendment, and Supreme Court matters.

Two months later, I was appointed by the Attorney General to be the Principal Deputy Associate Attorney General. Because the Department did not have a Senate-confirmed Associate Attorney General, I served as the head of the Office of the Associate Attorney General and the third-ranking official in the Justice Department for the duration of my tenure. (Under the Vacancies Reform Act, I held the title of “Acting Associate Attorney General” for only a small portion of that tenure.) In that role, I was responsible for both criminal and civil matters handled by five litigating divisions: the Antitrust Division, Civil Division, Civil Rights Division, the Environment and Natural Resources Division, and the Tax Division. Each of these divisions handles both civil and criminal matters: the Antitrust Division prosecutes price fixing, market allocation, and bid rigging; the Civil Division’s Consumer Protection Branch prosecutes fraud and other crimes committed against consumers; the Civil Rights Division prosecutes hate crimes; the Environment and Natural Resources Division prosecutes environmental crimes; and the Tax Division prosecutes tax fraud and other tax crimes. I also supervised three grantmaking components—the Office of Justice Programs, the Office of Violence Against Women, and the Office of Community Oriented Policing—that distribute $7 billion in law-enforcement grants annually and play a significant policy role in the Department’s law-enforcement efforts. My portfolio also included a number of smaller components like the Executive Office of the Trustee, the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, the Office of Information Policy, and the Community Relations Service. By virtue of my position, I was also the Government’s Chief FOIA Officer, the Department’s Regulatory Reform Officer, and the chair or vice-chair of a number of task forces, including task forces on Religious Liberty, Regulatory Reform, Puerto Rico, and Mark Integrity and Consumer Fraud. I also personally argued two appeals on behalf of the United States.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

At the Department of Justice, where I worked in the summer of 2009, from 2010 to 2012 and again from 2019 to 2021, I represented the United States and federal agencies in the federal district courts, courts of appeals, and the Supreme Court. From 2010 to 2012, my practice was exclusively criminal. From 2019 to 2021, I worked on constitutional, administrative, statutory, and criminal cases.

At the White House Counsel's Office, where I worked from 2017 to 2019, my principal client was the President of the United States. My practice was focused primarily on constitutional and administrative law.

At Kirkland & Ellis, where I worked from 2013 to 2017, my practice focused on appellate litigation, white-collar defense, and commercial litigation. I handled cases for companies, individuals, and state, local, and territorial governments raising constitutional questions, statutory interpretation issues, substantive criminal procedure and sentencing matters, and regulatory issues. I also prioritized pro bono work, including on behalf of a veteran whose benefits had been wrongly denied.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

A significant portion of my practice has been in litigation. During my tenure at Main Justice, I argued on average two cases a year in the federal courts of appeals. At the U.S. Attorney's Office, I was typically in court two to three days a week. During my time at Kirkland, I engaged in extensive motions practice and appeared occasionally in lower courts to argue dispositive motions. At the White House, I did not personally litigate, but served as the Department of Justice's "client" in many cases in which the President had been sued or his equities were otherwise impacted. During my most recent tenure at the Justice Department, I personally argued two appeals and spent a significant portion of my time managing litigation.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

- 1. federal courts: 90%
- 2. state courts of record: 10%
- 3. other courts: 0%
- 4. administrative agencies: 0%

- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

- 1. civil proceedings: 55%
- 2. criminal proceedings: 45%

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried at least five cases to verdict. In four, I was sole counsel. In the fifth, I served as second chair. This does not include cases that were resolved via dispositive motion or trials in which I merely assisted with motions practice.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:
  - 1. jury: 20%
  - 2. non-jury: 80%

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have filed 8 briefs before the Supreme Court, both at the certiorari and merits stages (listed below). I also served as second chair in one Supreme Court argument, Puerto Rico v. Franklin California Tax-Free Trust, No. 15-233. Throughout my practice, I have participated in dozens of moot courts for Supreme Court practitioners preparing for argument. In addition, early in my career I clerked on the Supreme Court. Finally, while still in law school and immediately following graduation, I worked on Supreme Court briefs as part of a law school clinic, as a summer associate at Gibson Dunn & Crutcher, and as a summer law intern in the Department of Justice's Office of the Solicitor General.

15. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;
  - b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
  - c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.
1. Nat'l Coal. for Men v. Selective Serv. Sys., 969 F.3d 546 (5th Cir. 2020) (Wiener, Stewart, Willett, JJ.)

I argued this Fifth Circuit appeal on behalf of the United States and secured reversal of an adverse district court decision. Under the Military Selective Service Act, all male citizens and immigrants ages 18 to 26 must register with the Selective Service System to facilitate their conscription in the event of a military draft. That male-only requirement was upheld by the Supreme Court against an Equal Protection challenge in Rostker v. Goldberg, 453 U.S. 57 (1981). Plaintiffs, a men's advocacy organization, argued that changing circumstances—in particular, the integration of women into combat roles in the military—meant that Rostker no longer controlled. The district court agreed, and granted summary judgment declaring that the male-only registration requirement was unlawful. The Fifth Circuit reversed, accepting the Government's argument that Rostker continued to control unless and until it was reversed by the Supreme Court.

2. A.H. v. French, 985 F.3d 165 (2nd Cir. 2021) (Walker, Menashi, JJ.)*

I argued this Second Circuit appeal as an amicus curiae on behalf of the Government in support of the Plaintiff-Appellant. The case presented a challenge by a student in Vermont who sought to enroll in the State's "Dual Enrollment Program," which pays tuition for high school juniors and seniors to take up to two courses at approved Vermont colleges. To be eligible for the program, a student must demonstrate that his or her high school is "publicly funded." Plaintiff-appellant, who attended a religious school, was denied access to the Dual Enrollment Program because her school did not meet the "publicly funded" criterion. She contended that her exclusion from the program violated the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment and sought a preliminary injunction, which the district court denied. In this appeal, she contended that the district court had abused its discretion. The United States agreed, arguing that her exclusion from the program fell afoul of Trinity Lutheran Church of Columbia v. Comer, 137 S. Ct. 2012, 528 U.S. __ (2017). The Second Circuit agreed and reversed the district court.

3. Franklin California Tax-Free Trust v. Puerto Rico, 805 F.3d 322 (1st Cir.), cert. granted, 577 U.S. 1025 (2015), and cert. granted sub nom., Acosta-Febo v. Franklin California Tax-Free Trust, 577 U.S. 1026 (2015), and aff'd, 579 U.S. 115 (2016).

I was part of a team that represented the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and its Governor in defending the constitutionality of the Puerto Rico Public Corporation Debt Enforcement and Recovery Act (“Recovery Act”). Because of the serious fiscal crisis facing Puerto Rico, its public utilities risked becoming insolvent. A state or locality in a similar position would restructure, but Puerto Rico—because it is not a “State”—is not eligible to authorize its utilities to seek bankruptcy relief under Chapter 9 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. Accordingly, Puerto Rico enacted the Recovery Act, a municipal bankruptcy law, in an effort to permit its utilities to restructure their debt in an orderly way. Several bondholders brought suit, arguing that 11 U.S.C. § 903(1) of the Bankruptcy Code preempted the Recovery Act and that the Recovery Act was barred by the Contracts and Takings Clause of the U.S. Constitution. The Commonwealth argued that Section 903(1), which only applies to “States,” was inapplicable to Puerto Rico and that the Contracts and Takings Clauses posed no obstacle. The District Court (Besosa, J.) and the First Circuit (Howard, Torruella, Lynch, JJ.) agreed with plaintiff-bondholders. Following our successful cert petition, the Supreme Court also ruled in favor of the bondholders, holding that the Recovery Act was preempted by Section 903(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. In the district court, I was part of a sizable team briefing summary judgment. On appeal, I was one of two attorneys who drafted all appellate briefs and petitions in the case, and I second-chaired arguments in both the First Circuit and the Supreme Court.

I represented the defendant in this putative nationwide class action. Plaintiff was a former hospital patient whose surgery bills were discharged in bankruptcy. Following an administrative error, the hospital failed to correctly record that her debts had been discharged and sent them to defendant—a third-party that managed revenue services for hospitals, including by following up on outstanding, non-defaulted balances—for follow-up. Defendant sent plaintiff a one-page letter requesting payment, which did not include a disclaimer required of debt collections agencies under the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act. Plaintiff then brought a putative nationwide class action under the FDCPA, seeking millions of dollars in damages. Defendant moved for summary judgment on the grounds that it did not service defaulted debt and was not a “debt collector” covered by the FDCPA. The district court (Steele, J.), granted summary judgment, and the Eleventh Circuit (Carnes, Dubina, Huck, JJ.) affirmed. I briefed summary judgment, managed discovery, deposed the plaintiff, and briefed the appeal. (I was unable to argue the appeal because argument was scheduled for the day my third child was due.)

5. Dye v. Accretive Health (Mich. Cir. Ct. filed December 15, 2015) (Druzinski, J.)

I represented the defendant in this putative statewide class action. Plaintiff was a former hospital patient who alleged that defendant—who managed revenue services for hospitals, including by following up on non-defaulted, outstanding balances—had misrepresented the purpose of its communications with plaintiff and thereby violated the Michigan Occupation Code when it failed to identify itself as a “debt collector” for purposes of the FDCPA. (Plaintiff did not allege that he himself had been misled by any communications made by Defendant.) Plaintiff sought to certify a statewide class and sought $225 million in damages. Defendant moved to dismiss on the grounds that it did not service defaulted debt and was not a “debt collector” covered by the FDCPA—and thus had not been misleading in its communications. The court granted the motion and dismissed the case. I briefed and argued the motion.

6. United States v. Gordon, 710 F.3d 1124 (10th Cir. 2013) (Hartz, O’Brien, Holmes, JJ.)

I argued this Tenth Circuit criminal appeal on behalf of the United States. Defendant was a former securities attorney convicted of multiple criminal charges relating to his alleged participation in a “pump-and-dump” scheme where he violated the federal securities laws and defrauded investors of millions of dollars by artificially inflating the value of various stocks, before turning around and selling them for a substantial profit. On appeal, he argued that the United States improperly seized his assets, substantially depriving him of his Sixth Amendment right to counsel; that the evidence presented at trial was insufficient to support his conviction; that the district court erred in permitting the United States to (he claimed) insinuate that he was guilty by introducing evidence that infringed his Fifth Amendment right to remain silent; that the district court erred in excusing a petit juror without adequate cause; that the district court violated the Speedy Trial Act when it continued the date for commencement of the trial; that the district court erred in calculating the loss and gain amounts at sentencing; and that the district court erred in imposing joint and several liability for the illicit stock sales he was involved in. The Tenth Circuit disagreed and affirmed both the defendant’s conviction and his sentence.

7. United States v. Avalos, 458 F. App’x 530 (6th Cir. 2012) (Merritt, Moore, Mays, JJ.)

I briefed and argued this Sixth Circuit criminal appeal on behalf of the United States. The defendant, who had been convicted of conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine, argued that the district court erred in allowing the government to introduce evidence of her prior convictions at trial. The Sixth Circuit disagreed, holding that evidence of her prior convictions was properly admitted to demonstrate knowledge and intent, both of which were at issue in her case.

8. Edwards v. DeWalt, 681 F.3d 780 (6th Cir. 2012) (Daughtry, Cole, Rogers, JJ.)

I briefed and argued this Sixth Circuit habeas appeal on behalf of the United States. Defendant was a cocaine distributor who had been sentenced in 1985 to 15 years' imprisonment followed by a mandatory ten-year term of "special parole." Special parole was a mandatory form of supervised release imposed for federal drug crimes committed before 1987, under which a defendant forfeited credit for time spent in non-custodial supervision if his special parole was revoked due to, e.g., the commission of an additional crime during his term of special parole. Petitioner challenged the re-imposition of his ten-year special-parole restrictions following the revocation of his special parole. He argued that the U.S. Parole Commission's special-parole regulations were invalid; that the Parole Commission lacked the authority to impose a new term of special parole when a defendant's initial term of special parole was revoked; and that the Commission had erred in calculating the appropriate prison time that should precede his re-parole. The Sixth Circuit disagreed, upholding the Parole Commission's special-parole regulations and its broad discretion thereunder, reserving the question of whether a term of special parole may be reimposed, and holding Defendant's challenge to the calculation of his prison time to be moot in light of his release. Accordingly, it denied habeas relief.

I briefed and argued this Fifth Circuit criminal appeal on behalf of the United States. The defendant was a Laredo police officer who abused his position by serving as an escort for cocaine shipments and helping the traffickers to evade police surveillance, in exchange for "easy money." He was convicted at trial of conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute more than 5 kilograms of cocaine and of carrying a firearm in relation to a drug trafficking offense. On appeal, the defendant raised a Speedy Trial Act claim; challenged the exclusion of several out-of-court statements; raised several challenges to the jury instructions and answers to juror questions used at his trial; challenged the sufficiency of the evidence used to convict him of the firearms charge; and challenged several sentencing enhancements that had been applied to him. The Fifth Circuit affirmed the defendant's conviction and sentence.

I represented the United States in this jury trial of defendants charged with attempting to defraud a small business. Defendants attempted to perpetrate a "black money" counterfeiting scam whereby they would steal the victim's money after promising to use chemicals to darken it and then replicate it. After the victim reported the attempted crime to the Secret Service, the Secret Service set up a sting in which the victim introduced the defendants to an undercover officer, whom the defendants also attempted to defraud. Following trial, two of the defendants were convicted and sentenced to 2 to 4 years in prison. I second-chaired the trial, gave the opening statement, directed several witnesses, and briefed and argued numerous pretrial motions.

16. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

In addition to litigation that proceeded to trial (or other in-court resolution), my practice in the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice involved evaluating adverse decisions sustained by the Government in order to advise the Solicitor General whether to pursue an appeal. A significant portion of my practice at Kirkland & Ellis involved white-collar defense (including advice to clients) and internal investigations. In addition, one of my largest cases while at Kirkland ended in a settlement that I negotiated. During my time in the White House, a substantial portion of my practice involved evaluating potential rulemakings and other executive actions with an eye to mitigating potential vulnerabilities in litigation. Finally, while serving as Principal Deputy Associate Attorney General, I provided legal advice to the Attorney General and other high-ranking Government officials and was responsible for approving certain high-dollar settlement agreements and litigating positions taken by the United States. I have never performed lobbying activities.

17. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

None.

18. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I have no arrangements in the future to be compensated for any financial or business interest.

19. Outside Commitments During Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service? If so, explain.

If confirmed, I do not have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during my service.

20. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

When my nomination is formally submitted to the Senate, I will file my Financial Disclosure Report and will supplement this Questionnaire with a copy of that Report.

21. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

22. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, affiliations, pending and categories of litigation, financial arrangements or other factors that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

My husband works for Paul Hastings, LLP, a law firm. If confirmed, I would recuse myself from any matters in which Paul Hastings is directly involved. I am not aware of any other potential conflicts of interest that would be likely to arise during my service were I to be confirmed.

In the event of a potential conflict of interest, I would consult with my colleagues and the Administrative Office of the Federal Courts and recuse myself where necessary. In all circumstances, I would comply with all applicable statutes, policies, and practices relative to this office.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

In the event of a potential conflict of interest, I would consult with my colleagues and the Administrative Office of the Federal Courts. In all circumstances, I would comply with all applicable statutes, policies, and practices relative to this office.

23. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each. If you are not an attorney, please use this opportunity to report significant charitable and volunteer work you may have done.

I have spent a significant portion of my legal career in public service. While in private practice, I also performed substantial pro bono legal service. In recognition of that service, I received the Kirkland & Ellis LLP Pro Bono Service Award in both 2015 and 2016. Each year, I performed over 100 hours of pro bono service. For example, I filed—and won—an appeal in the United States Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims on behalf of a veteran of the Iraq War who had erroneously been denied access to health benefits. I also successfully secured dismissal of criminal charges against an African hair braider from New Jersey who was charged under an unconstitutional licensing statute. Finally, I performed direct services on behalf of the indigent by doing monthly intake of impoverished clients at Catholic Charities Legal Services.
